

WILLIAMS BREAKS DOWN NEAR CLOSE

Unable to Complete Speech on Account of Severe Attack of Neuralgia.

ANNOYED BY INTERRUPTIONS

Declares Protectionism is Rank Socialism—Senate Passes Indian Appropriation Bill.

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28.—Mr. Williams, the minority leader of the House, concluded his speech today by the experience of the many interruptions of the day before, the leader of the minority threw himself upon the mercy of the body and asked that he be not interrupted. Generally his request was observed, but here and there, questions were put to him by Mr. Boutwell (Illinois), Mr. Hamilton (Michigan), and Mr. C. B. Landis (Indiana), which nettled the speaker not a little. Mr. Williams was unable to conclude on account of a severe attack of neuralgia, contending himself with what had been said against existing tariff schedules and availing himself of the privilege to enlarge upon the subject in his published speech.

Mr. Cushman (Washington) replied to Mr. Williams, but was taken off the floor before he had really got started, owing to the former action of the House, agreeing to conclude general debate on the agricultural bill at 3:30 o'clock, at which time the House adjourned until to-morrow, when eulogies will be delivered on the life of the late Representative McKinney of Texas.

Mr. Williams discussed the speech made by Mr. Hepburn (Iowa). He took exception to Mr. Hepburn's "dumping" theory—a word, he said, that has come into use much like the "surplus" used in the discussion of goods abroad. He said that the selling of goods abroad was neither a "dumping" process nor a "surplus" process, but was an "exploitation" process. He declared that the American steel "trust" had been the cause of the loss of two days, during which the House had been discussing "protectionism is rank socialism, rank agrarianism and rank communism."

CHAMPIONS INDIANS.

Spencer Takes Up Cause of Red Men—Bill is Passed.

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, April 28.—The Senate today passed the Indian appropriation bill. Several hours were devoted to a spirited debate on the question of removing the restrictions from the lands of the Choctaw, Chickasaw, Cherokee, Creek and Seminole except full-bloods. After an amendment was offered and amended to suit those who favored it, a point of order was made against the provision, and the point was sustained by the Vice-President.

Mr. Spencer, the champion of the Indian in preventing the removal of the restriction, but Messrs. Teller, Long and others, who favored the amendment, charged that he was misquoting in his zeal, and the Indians themselves wanted to be permitted to sell a market for their own lands.

Mr. Spooner said the entire argument appeared to be for the white man, with nothing for the Indian.

The Senate adjourned until Monday.

Greatest Blessing to Women Having Freckles or Pimples

MRS. L. T. SULLIVAN writes

JACKSON, TENN., Sept. 5, 1905.
"For years I was sorely afflicted with pimples, freckles and blotches. I tried doctors, specialists, blood and liver medicines, and tried many ways, but the pimples got worse. I then used two packages of Nadinola and one of Egyptian Cream, just as directed, and now I am a picture of health on my face. I consider Nadinola the greatest blessing that could come to a freckled or pimply face woman." Gratefully,

NADINOLA is endorsed by thousands of other ladies who know it will remove freckles or pimples and beautify the complexion in ten to twenty days.

DOWIE'S QUIET RETURN TO ZION

Entry of Apostle Into City Void of All Pomp and Ceremony.

IS WELCOMED BY WIFE

People Sing "Showers of Blessings" As Rain Pours Down.

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, April 28.—"I am glad to be home again." With these words John Alexander Dowie, the deposed leader of the Christian Catholic Church in America, after an absence of several months, during which time he had been deserted by a large part of his followers and had been stripped of all ecclesiastical authority, returned to the city of his birth, Chicago, and was met at the door of his home by his wife, Mrs. Dowie.

Dowie's return to Zion City was void of all pomp and ceremony. Only a handful of people were at the station to greet him, and the majority of these were women.

When Dowie today left the auditorium annex, where he had been stopping since his return from Mexico, he was driven to the Chicago and Northwestern depot, where a private car had been attached to the regular 3 o'clock train. He was accompanied by several of his personal attendants.

As Dowie alighted from the train at Zion City he was greeted by shouts of "Peace to thee." He responded with the customary "Peace to thee, multiplied." But, which had been threatening for some time, then began to fall, and the crowd, with one accord, began to sing "Showers of Blessings." Upon reaching the door of his carriage Dowie turned, and, facing the assembled people, made a short address.

"I have done nothing since I saw you to face," he said, "of which I am ashamed. Not one of the accusations made against me is true. Not one, God bless you. Now I bid you good-bye. Peace to thee."

He has been a very vigorous and finely preserved man, and his illness comes as a great shock to his friends. ### CARNEGIE GIVES TO NEGRO SCHOOL

But School Must Raise An Additional Ten Thousand for Maintenance.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
LAWRENCEVILLE, VA., April 28.—Rev. James S. Russell, principal of the St. Paul N. and I. School, at this place, has just received a conditional pledge of $10,000 from Mr. Andrew Carnegie in reply to a recent appeal made to him for the gift of a library for this institution. The St. Paul Normal and Industrial School is the largest institution of its kind under the auspices of the Episcopal Church for the moral, spiritual, intellectual and industrial training of colored youths.

Mr. Carnegie pledges $10,000 for the library on the condition that the amount of $10,000 new endowment is raised in cash or reliable securities, for maintenance of the library. It goes without saying that Principal Russell and the school authorities will be very happy when the conditions required by Mr. Carnegie are complied with, as the library is one of the very great needs of the school.

St. Paul's School has an attendance of over 500 students, has thirty-seven teachers and instructors, and twenty-three departments of trade, where the students are trained in the various handicrafts.

THE BIBLE.

Lay the Bible on the senseless form While the soul is born elsewhere, For its lessons are life's barriers Of defense against despair.

In history and prophecy, in promise and in praise, Illuminate are its pages, And, reverberant from pole to pole Its echoes span the ages.

Harmoniously, in thundered chords, With tender, sweet appeal, It sends abroad Divine command God's saving grace to feel.

Let children learn at mother's knee This "Book of Books" on earth, This fountain-spring of human hope, Where faith in God finds birth.

Then will its sacred lessons Be their beacon light of life To the portals of the "Great Beyond," Where peace has conquered strife.

Where Christ is King Eternal O'er the saints of all the ages, And faith in His atoning blood, The unlearned saves, and angels.

THE MAN IN THE OVERCOAT

By EDITH MORGAN WILLETT.

"There's no need to look so tragic, John. (The tone was crisp, even condescending, yet the Burglar felt a thrill of relief.)

"The matter really isn't worth thinking about, much less discussing. It was quite unnecessary to slam the door. (The tone was dignified, if not a little scornful.)

"Of course, it isn't that I mind strict economy," she hastened on, "one servant, and spending the summer in town, and all that. But sometimes I confess I do long for pretty things—a few trinkets, you know, and clothes, and—"

(She thought she saw the broad shoulders wince.)

"Don't think it's your fault, dear old boy." Her very voice was a caress. "I know how hard you work from morning till night in order to make both ends meet, and deny yourself everything for my sake. Why, you wouldn't even have that overcoat now if I hadn't bought it for you myself on the sly out of Uncle George's cheque. You're the very best man in the world." (And her hand felt affectionately on his sleeve.)

With a hoarse, smothered ejaculation, the burglar turned swiftly from her and made for the door in two strides.

The black bag stood in the shadow of the portiere, but he only kicked it impatiently out of the way as he went, leaving the mistress of the house alone.

"Jack, oh Jack!" she cried in terror as something fell heavily in the hall outside, and running to the threshold she gazed, horror-stricken, at a long, black object that lay on the floor at her feet.

The burglar closed the front door and walked down the steps minus an overcoat, but with a stately mien that belied his conscious rectitude.

"Don't mention it," he said graciously to the mistress of the house, who stumbled against him on the curbing and apologized profusely.

In the glare of the electric light he looked tired and overworked.

"Poor Devil!" soliloquized the burglar compassionately (he himself hated work), "he would lay his head on the pillow and then as cold wind from the avenue struck him he added ruefully:

"But golly! I'd like to be in his overcoat!" (Copyright by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

They were sitting alone in the twilight, and were observing the economy in chairs which is usual to true lovers. Half an hour before he had whispered the old story, not to say stories, and she had nestled to his breast, and reflected that in the course of a few months she could tell the shopwalker to see if he could give his family a better show than she for she was the happiest girl in all the fair Brighton Hill. Suddenly she started, frowned, and looked him full in the face.

"I told," she said, "you are untrue to me."

"My darling—"

"You are! Why, you're making game of me—you're making faces at me! I—I hate you!"

"I can't help it, darling," he said plaintively. "My glasses are falling off, and I don't want to let go of your dear little hands."

To the State, I would say to this vote, as you see, and I am sure that you, O'Connell, you will wish that you had taken a greater interest in your pilots, and had your young pilots educated as the army pilots are. Then they would ever be an honor as well as a protection to our sea coast.

As to Highway Improvement.

Editor of The Times-Dispatch: Sir.—In our system of highway improvement very little attention is paid to the erection of permanent structures.

After the road is dug up and the culverts and wooden bridges are fixed and all expensive fixtures to maintain. While costing more to construct with the reinforced concrete culverts, the terra cotta pipe drains and the concrete bridges, with concrete floor, is by far the cheapest in the end, the cost of maintenance for a number of years is saved.

The road to a depth that is equal to its diameter, the passing of 12-ton loads will not break the concrete floor, and the culverts should be made sufficiently strong to safely pass a moving load at fourteen tons.

A question is often asked, "What is the best material for heavy traffic?" Southern heart pine blocks, chemically treated with creosote, are the best material for heavy traffic.

Relocation should always be considered. It is a mistake to put down good material and build a new road on top of it. The road should be made as wide as possible, and the material should be made as strong as possible.

Narrow roads offer splendid opportunities for tracking, tracking with the narrow, round, rubber-tired wheels, and the narrow road is a great deal better than the wide road, and the narrow road is a great deal better than the wide road.

A small percentage of the total length of a road, and the first and second year under heavy traffic, with narrow cutting tires, will develop depressions, and in many cases, rutting, and the narrow road is a great deal better than the wide road.
